WHITE CROSSES AND BLACK

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

Throughout the world Armistice Day will be observed by religious services commemorating the dead of the World War. Ten million men sleep in the battlefields of Europe. Ten million more walk about maimed for life. What matter it that some of the dead were German and that some of the crippled are Austrian! Human life was sacrificed and crushed. All civilization was affected. The Unknown Soldier symbolizes this loss of life. We like to think of him representative of all the dead—allied as well as enemy—the symbol of human sacrifice.

If armistice means anything to mankind, it should strengthen the determination to abolish war. The lessons of war, of its cruelty and of its brutality, of its wanton destruction, of its suffering and misery, stand eloquently revealed. Man must annihilate war else it will annihilate him. The next war if allowed to take place will prove more devastating because it will be more scientific than the last. To too many, products of our modern history text-books, war is a matter of frenzied hurrahs, of glittering uniforms, of blowing bugles, of applause of masses. Armistice Day with its memories of the dead dissipates this false glamour and, like the surgeon's scalpel, it lays before our eyes the bare truth. On that day we know that war is hell.

The time has come when war hatreds should be forgotten and war animosities discarded. We must see that our erstwhile foes were human beings, and that as their sons died they endured the same agonies as ours. France is filled with cemeteries of the war dead. German and French dead sleep together on France's soil. In many instances but a narrow road separates the erstwhile foes, at peace and reconciled at last. Over the graves of the French, there stand white crosses—over those of the Germans black ones. We should like to see these black crosses painted white as a symbol that war hatreds are forgotten. We should like to see the wounded French soldiers paint these black crosses white. Such an act would be religious. It would be Godly. It would be in keeping with the spirit of Armistice Day.

"A GOOD FOREIGNER IS BETTER THAN A POOR COCKNEY"

J. Pocrock, a Canadian who has become a prominent figure in London banking circles, and who is a member of the firm of Baring Brothers, in an interview in The Toronto Star, stated while on the subject of immigration that "a good foreigner is better than a poor cockney." Mr. Pocrock is an imperialist. He cannot be accused of provincialism. He realizes that Canada's paramount need is people—people who will be willing to work hard and to develop the natural resources of this country. The United States owes her economic greatness to that type of immigrant who has been so generously abused from platform and by editorials. It is the foreigner from Central, Southern and Eastern Europe, who is willing to go into the mines, who is ready to work on construction gangs, who does not despise the more menial tasks which abound in a young country. That type of foreigner enriches a country. He is not a liability. He is an asset.

OUR SUNDAY SERVICES

The announcement in last week's Review of the inauguration of Sunday services in our local Reform Temple has caused us a great deal of pain and sorrow.

Association in the columns of this journal with wearers of the cloth for a period of over a year has brought about a marked enlargement of our cardiac organ. We have grown big-hearted. The holiness which emanates from the sacred gentlemen has entered our system, and we have become accustomed to the feeling that our being should have nothing else to do but stay consecrated to the service of a misguided mankind.

We are therefore particularly attuned to appreciate the gravity of the new clerical ordinance, and the dire consequences that will follow to the portion of Israel on whom it will be binding.

The great Rabbi Levi Isaac Berdichev (the chief disciple of Israel Baal Shem, the founder of Chassidism, famous as a scholar, saint and humanist) had a habit of complaining to God that He was not treating His children fairly. The Jewish people, he maintained, were not a bad lot, surely not worse than their neighbours. Yet God kept piling on an unbearable load of all sorts of laws and precepts on them, and then taking them to account for not performing the impossible. Rabbi Levi Isaac often became impatient with God for His unfair practices and scolded Him roundly. Levi Isaac, humanist and saint that he was, loved humanity more than he loved God. Human beings are weak. God is strong. God should not place temptations in their way. Levi Isaac's dicta and verses on this subject are still being quoted and sung in many Jewish homes.

Now, it seems to us that in adding Sunday to the list of Jewish sacred days the local rabbi is acting hand in hand with Satan by placing another pitfall in the way of his guileless flock. The membership is human. By inclination and habit the majority, if true to type, are apt to be indifferent observers of religious precepts. Therefore, while they formerly had only two derelictions a week on their conscience, they will now have three to torment them.

Imagine the agony which the average member had to endure of a cold winter Friday evening, ensconced in a deep chair by the fireside, listening to family gossip, or tilting forward in an orchestra seat at the theatre watching the fantastic gyrations of musical comedy stars—all the while thinking of the sins which his soul was committing in staying away from the services at the Temple! Spiritual sufferings, as we all know, are heard to bear, and no amount of physical comforts can compensate for them. It was an act of positive unkindness on the part of the religious dispensation to place in the path of the good members fresh temptations for lapses from grace.

And now visualize the Homeric struggle of emotions which will rage in the breasts of the members on a Sunday morning, say in autumn, or in the spring! The sun on high suffuses a flood of cheering effulgence. The weather outdoors is delightful and invigorating. Into the bones creeps a sort of fever which burns and consumes. It is the call of the noble game of golf! Generations of par-players are Formal ball December 18.

That a new religion is being formed in Russia now, just as Christianity superseded paganism, is the striking observation made upon his return from a seven months' sojourn in Europe by Dr. Lewis Browne, author of "This Believing World," who lectured Tuesday, November 1. on "This Believing World," under the auspices of the Y.M.H.A. Forum.

Dr. Browne says that already Karl Marx is the Moses and Lenin the Christ of the new religion, for communism is not so much a political theory as it is a cult. It was interesting, he says, to note the way the change is being brought about in the country which has a government opposed to religion and yet is establishing, unintentionally, another religion. Peasants may be seen going by the bier of Lenin crossing themselves. The Russian term which used to mean Uncle Lenin, to the people, now has the significant meaning of "Beloved Lenin," who is worshipped just as Christ is worshipped. Furthermore, declares Dr. Browne, this is apt to take on some of the mysticism of the East, for the Orient looks to Russia as its bulwark.

Mr. Browne was guest of honour at a luncheon at the Reform Club Tuesday, November 1. The guests were Moe Levitt, Harris Watstein, Phil Meyerovitch, Ben. Bernstein, Harry Jacoby, Mrs. Hazel Lozinski, Oswald Schuller, R. Ginsberg, Harold Neumann, Sam Schweisberg, Max Bernfeld, Lionel Sperber, Nat. S. Fineberg, Sol. Vineberg, Dr. Barney Usher, Bernard Cohen, Joe Magid, Mrs. Max. Bernfeld, Dr. E. A. Greenspon and Mrs. Adolph Gardner.

Dr. Otto Klineberg

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi Harry J. Stern, of Montreal
Associate Contributing Editor

JEWISH MONTREAL—EAST AND WEST

Kipling's immortal pretty phrase:

"East is East, and West is West
And never the twain shall meet,"

seems to apply to our Jewish Montreal. We hear many speak of the Main Street dividing our community into a Jewish West and East. To open-minded men and women such geographic divisions are meaningless. In Jewish endeavour—"ever the twain shall meet!" And judging from the communal activities in Jewish Federation and education, the West is more than interested in the East. However, is it true that in the local universities Jewish snobocracy does hold sway? Is it true that "the sons from the West" hold aloof from "the sons of the East"? This need not be. We are all children of Israel.

"THE OUTLAWRY OF WAR"

Charles Clayton Morrison is the author of a new book, "The Outlawry of War." It is a splendid work presenting a constructive policy for world peace. Morrison defines war as "an institution." Civilized society has done away with many such institutions which have become repugnant to its moral sense or a menace to its well being. Take, for example, such "institutions" as the ordeal, trial by battle, piracy, international slave-trade, the duel, domestic slavery, polygamy—any of these at one time were considered legal and respectable. But mankind revolted against these. Nations must do the same to war. The hour has struck for the peoples of the world to pluck this infamous institution of war out of the legal system of civilization and establish justice and peace. We present this paragraph as a meditation for Armistice Day. The outlawry of war must come.

RABBI JOEL BLAU

The untimely death of Joel Blau has brought sadness and mourning to thousands in America and England. Blau was an original preacher of Judaism. He knew his Jewish sources. We have a suspicion that his scholarship was not always appreciated in America. It was English Jewry that saw the greatness of Joel Blau. He was therefore called to become senior minister of one of England's oldest and most distinguished congregations. But, alas! he hardly began his ministry in London when he was summoned to the academy on high. May his soul rest in peace!

A CHILUL HASHEM

In the courts of Cleveland on November 15 will commence "the Rabbi Solomon Goldman Heresy Trial." Rabbi Goldman is charged with heterodoxy by a group of strict Orthodox. It is certainly un-Jewish and very much un-Orthodox to air Jewish congregational and theological frictions in the secular courts. The whole business may be classed as a chilul Hashem—a disgrace! However, the Goldman case does suggest the question, what is "Conservative Judaism?"—the brand represented by the Jewish Theological Seminary? We know what constitutes Orthodoxy. Orthodox Judaism is based on the Shulchan Aruch—the code of Joseph Caro. Any deviation from Shulchan Aruchism spells reform. Therefore, when Orthodox congregations remove the bumah from the centre of the Synagogue, permit men and women to sit together, make use of the organ in the service and hold confirmation services, certainly they cannot label themselves as Orthodox. It seems to us conservative Judaism halts between two opinions. Here is a splendid opportunity for the leaders of the United Synagogue once for all to make clear what they mean by Conservative Judaism. It certainly is not Orthodox. It certainly is a step toward reform, or Liberal Judaism. We suggest that the Jewish Centre of Cleveland join the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and avoid "the chilul Hashem." Rabbi Goldman would certainly feel more at home in Liberal Judaism. In religion or politics one is either an Orthodox or a Liberal—there is no go-between.

The will of the late Dr. Charles D. Spivak, head of the Jewish Jewish Consumptive Relief Society of Denver, is the remarkable document of a remarkable man. He bequeathed his body to a medical college for scientific research and his bones to the University of Jerusalem to be used for demonstration purposes in the department of anatomy and he willed that no addresses or eulogies be delivered at his funeral. His family was surprised at Dr. Spivak's will but decided to carry it out to the letter. This recalls the will of Dr. Krauskopf, rabbi of Philadelphia, who died several years ago. He asked that his family not wear mourning for him or have eulogies delivered over his body, but said the wish of the living was of more importance than that of the dead and they should do otherwise if they so desired.

Funeral services for Dr. Spivak were held at Beth Ha'Medrosh Hagodol Synagogue in Denver. He had willed that the rites be read in Yiddish with preference for Yehoash's Yiddish translation of the Bible. The medical advisory board of the Relief Society, carrying out the directions of the will, sent the embalmed body to Colorado General Hospital, where it will be dissected by students of the medical school of the University of Colorado. Later the skeleton will be shipped to the University of Jerusalem "and all expenses incident to the embalming, dissection and shipping of the skeleton shall be paid by my estate."

It is significant that Dr. Spivak directed his body to be dissected by "an equal number of non-Jewish and Jewish students," or at all, for that matter. There is rigid opposition among most Jews to post-mortem operations or investigations and dissection. When trouble has come up at Roumanian and other foreign universities between Jewish and non-Jewish students and Jewish students are excluded, it is exclaimed as a reason that Jews refuse the bodies of their dead for medical investigation but do not hesitate to operate on non-Jewish dead. Apropos of this, a lecturer at Hebrew Union College a few years ago pointed out that the teachings of the Talmud are not against dissection; that, on the contrary, there are plenty of examples to show that post-mortem investigations were not unusual enough to cause any surprise.

Perhaps it was with something like this in mind that Dr. Spivak wished his body to be used for purposes of study and particularly by an equal number of non-Jewish and Jewish students. It was not because dead bodies are hard to get for dissection and could not have been the mere fact that Dr. Spivak died from cancer of the liver, since the disease is not rare. His body was no more valuable for purposes of study than thousands of others in the world, but his example was valuable. He was an enlightened man. Perhaps he wanted to help a little to free people from superstition and custom. He evidently disapproved flatly of the Jewish attitude toward dissection of the Jewish dead, especially in the light of the benefit to mankind that makes post-mortem investigation necessary. This is an attitude never mentioned in the agenda of rabbinical conferences. Why? It is important. A new pronouncement on the subject might not be out of place. Dr. Spivak's will suggests it.

Dr. Spivak needs no eulogy after death. His life won him eulogies during its time. It was a span of usefulness, influence, devotion to the needs of others. He was outside the circle of men who in their pathos and vanity and humourlessness want wonderful words said over them so that others may hear though they cannot. He left that to smaller men, men who accomplish little for themselves or others, who are often unknown to the eulogist, who want some of the pomp they craved in life granted as they turn to powerless dust. Their lives have been bound up with the things that rust and rot and large eulogies must be said for them lest they go to their long home with nothing. This is not so with men like Dr. Spivak and his friend, Yehoash, who died within the same year. Their inner selves never die. They live on while people remember them and after mourners go about the streets. They live on forever by that impress of the spirit which passes from person to person and so is never lost.

ANTI-SEMITISM IN GERMANY FLOURISHING

The recent incident in connection with the Tannenberg memorial exercises, when Rabbi Dr. Levin was prevented from delivering his address, because the anti-Semitic national leagues threatened to organize a demonstration and march off the parade grounds if the rabbi was allowed to participate, illustrates again the deep-seated anti-Jewish prejudices that still prevail in Germany. The Koenigsberg Branch of the Union of Jewish ex-Soldiers of Germany properly abstained from joining the celebration when the incident became known. The celebration was held without Jewish participation and no reference was made to the incident in the addresses made on the occasion by President Hindenburg and others. The Jewish ex-soldiers issued a public statement in which their position was made clear to the unprejudiced German public.

The desecration of Jewish cemeteries has become a regular feature in the activities of the Hitlerites, who, unable to avenge themselves on the living Jews, endeavour to pour out their venom on the dead. Their latest exploit was the desecration of the cemetery in Frankfurt, where swastikas were placed on a number of tombstones, and on others the name of Judas Iscariot was engraved. The police apparently are unable to apprehend the vandals, although two boys were recently arrested in Bavaria, of the ages of seventeen and fifteen respectively, who were charged with having desecrated the Jewish cemetery of Gerolzhofen. The inability of the police to apprehend the ringleaders of this movement has been a cause of astonishment to the Jewish population, especially in view of the many repetitions of this act in different places. Many Jewish communities have even offered rewards for the arrest of the guilty persons.

Ludendorff and his second wife, who was a nerve specialist in Munich, has been touring East Prussia and lecturing against Jews, Jesuits and Masons. The General tried to impress his audiences with the fact that these three groups have formed a conspiracy, as early as 1912, with the view of robbing him of the fruits of his victory. Mrs. Ludendorff has apparently become a very apt pupil of her distinguished husband in the art of anti-Semitism, so that she is ready to go to the extent of repudiating Christianity because of its Jewish origin and to revive the worship of the ancient Teuton god Wodin. She condemned the Tannenberg memorial exercises because they were held on a Jewish holiday.

A Jewish newspaper publisher, Klopsch, brought an accusation against the famous Jewish economist and agricultural expert, Professor Franz Oppenheimer, that he had given a sum of 4,000,000 marks to the Prussian Prime Minister so as to make it easy for the Jews to obtain control of the Socialist movement. The case was recently tried in the Berlin courts and during the trial it was shown that Klopsch had falsified an official document on which his charges were based. The court sentenced Klopsch to one month's imprisonment. A high official in the Breslau district court, who was implicated in the affair, was suspended from his post.

The first anniversary of the death of Hugo Preuss, the author of the Weimar draft of the constitution of the German Republic, was celebrated in Berlin last week with appropriate ceremonies. Wreaths were placed on his grave, which was surrounded by a guard of honour.

The Bureau of Jewish Statistics in Germany just published some very alarming figures regarding the rate of Jewish suicides in Germany. During 1925 the number of Jewish suicides in Berlin, out of every 100,000 of the population, was 68, while there were only 45 of Protestants and 32 of Catholics. During the same year the number of Jewish suicides per 100,000 of the population in Budapest was 48, in Vienna 45, in Warsaw 17, in spite of the great economic depression there, and in Lodz 7. The number of Jewish suicides in Berlin has been on the increase since 1922, when it was 61; in 1923 the number was 72, in 1924 it was 96 and in 1925 117.

DEAD SEA CONCESSION AWARDED

The concession to exploit the vast mineral resources of the Dead Sea has finally been awarded by the British Government, the mandatory power for Palestine, to a British syndicate, and the American and continental offers have been definitely rejected. This action follows negotiations extending for a number of months, involving a large number of aspirants in America and on the continent of Europe, and requiring the joint action of the British Colonial Office, the Palestine Government and the Government of Transjordania. In making the announcement, the London Times says: "Thus ends the prolonged struggle of powerful interests, British, American and European, for the most coveted prize in the way of development concessions which has been competed for in modern times."

The Dead Sea basin, situated about twenty miles east of Jerusalem, offers the only mineral resources in the whole of Palestine. Experts have declared that at the bottom of this inland lake, about 1,300 feet below its surface, exist valuable mineral deposits of various kinds, including besides the salt which is found in the lake itself, large quantities of gypsum, chloride of magnesium and chloride of calcium. In 1925 the British Government made public the approximate figures of the mineral possibilities of the waters of the Dead Sea in billions of tons, as follows: Potassium chloride, 2; sodium chloride, 12; calcium and magnesium chloride, 28; and magnesium bromide, 1.

The syndicate which has obtained the concession will be a subsidiary company of the Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., a large chemical combination, with a capital in excess of $300,000,000, including the Brunner and the Mond interests. Among the bidders for the concession was also an Anglo-American syndicate, headed by Dr. Thomas Herbert Norton, and a Zionist Company, headed by the Russian-Jewish engineer, Novomeisky.

At the Haifa agricultural exhibition the first prize for flour was awarded to the Rothschild mills in that town. These mills are the marvel of Palestine industrial buildings, having in them all the most modern improvements and affording a livelihood to a large number of families. Attached to these mills is a modern matzah bakery, which has the finest machinery and is conducted in the strictest manner of the prescriptions of Jewish law. Large quantities of these matzoth are exported to all parts of the world, including America, India and China.

The work of development in various parts of Palestine, which has now begun on a large scale, including the constructions contemplated by the Rutenberg Concession and the Palestine Economic Corporation, will give employment to thousands of workmen and the hope is entertained that Palestine is gradually returning to a normal state and to a period of prosperity.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS CONCLUDES SESSION

The Eighth Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations held at Geneva was recently concluded. Except in the matter of Russian refugees, the Assembly did not deal officially with any specific questions that affect Jews. Mr. Lucien Wolf, who attended the sessions, as representative of the Joint Foreign Committee, the Alliance and the Ica, however, took the opportunity to discuss several of the pending Jewish and minority questions with the officials of the Secretariat and others attending the Assembly. Among the matters discussed, the procedure for giving effect to the League's guarantees of the Minorities Treaties, the problem of the Stattenlose, the Roumanian situation, the grievances of the Salonika Jews and the Hungarian Numerus Clausus. With regard to the last matter, Mr. Wolf called attention to the non-observance by Hungary of the pledge given to the Council by Count Klebelsberg on December 12, 1925, and expressed the opinion that the matter should be reconsidered by the Council, with a view to a definite pronouncement on the legality of the Numerus Clausus Law.

A referendum held among parents of school children in the colonies of Upper Galilee, with a view to ascertaining whether they wish their children to remain under the supervision of the Education Department of the Palestine Zionist Executive or under the Educational Committee of the Mizrachi organization, resulted in an overwhelming majority in favour of the Mizrachi supervision.

Eleven members of the 60th Toronto Troop were guests of the 5th St. Catharines Troop over the holiday week-end. M. Sulman is the scoutmaster there. An investiture of one of the boys of the St. Catharines Troop was held in the Synagogue Sunday School room Sunday evening following a banquet, at which most of the Jewish families of the city were present. James Montagnes, Toronto scoutmaster, assisted by M. Sulman, J. Fisher, of the 60th Troop, and George Goffin, of the 1st Port Dalhousie Troop, made Johnny Dewoor a member of the Boy Scouts' Association. He can easily be abused because he cannot speak for himself. And while eloquence is denouncing him, he is slowly making his contribution to Canadian life. In an immigration policy for Canada, we would say, all other things being equal, give the Englishman the preference, but never forget that—"a good foreigner is more desirable than a poor cockney."

luring him towards the green sward. Where is the mortal flesh that can resist the call? Yet there is the still small voice that pleads and urges the cause of God. It will not yield. It will battle for religion. At length the weak flesh will conquer. But the soul will be rent with mortification! God's child will suffer deep spiritual agony.

Or during the winter months when golfing is out of the question. Then there will be the soft bed, the freedom of a bath-robed hour, the lulling comfort of the Sunday journals, the romp with one's sweet youngsters, the too-laziness to take out the car and battle with the snow—alas! these unworthy considerations will deter many a well-intentioned member from seeking the blessings of spiritual exaltation in the Temple. And Israel's soul will again be seared with remorse. Our heart goes out to Israel in sympathy.

To save the situation it may be decreed that the Sunday services shall not be invested with any more sacredness than the services of any other secular day which are obligatory upon observing Jews. This would help a great deal. It is not so serious to miss the services on profane days. But then there will be the undeniable touch of sacredness in Sunday services at the Temple in the circumstances of the non-use of phylacteries. On all days but the Sabbath the phylacteries must be used. We take it that they will not be used in the Temple on Sundays. Thus the services will bear the similactrum of Sabbath services.

We presume that due care will be taken to warn the members who will attend the services to make sure not to say "Good Shabbos" if they happen to meet their Centre Avenue Synagogue or McCaul Street Synagogue fathers on Sunday.

And there will be this compensating feature: The orthodox parents will have the satisfaction of knowing that when their children are motoring down to the Temple they will not be desecrating the Sabbath.

DR. JOEL BLAU DIES IN LONDON

Dr. Joel Blau, senior minister of the West London Synagogue of British Jews, died at his home in London, England, at the age of 59. He was appointed to the post in 1925, but illness prevented him fully taking up his new duties.

Dr. Blau, who was of Hungarian birth, obtained his rabbinical diploma in America. He was a graduate of Columbia University, and for a time held the appointment of minister of Peni-El Temple, New York.

Dr. Blau came to America in 1901 and five years later graduated from the Hebrew Union College and the University of Cincinnati. He had been rabbi of synagogues in Rochester and Brooklyn and of the Congregation Bnai Jeshurun, Manhattan, before going to Temple Peni-El in 147th Street, near Broadway, in 1919. He was the author of many works on the English and Hebrew languages and was a frequent contributor to periodicals. Among his writings are "The Problem of Modern Faith," and "The Wonder of Life." The West London Synagogue was founded by Spanish and Portuguese Jews in 1830.

MANY HURT IN ANTI-SEMITIC RIOT IN BUDAPEST THEATRE

Many police and scores of anti-Semitic demonstrators were injured at the last two performances of the historical drama entitled "High Lady, or Maria Theresa" at the National Theatre. At the performance on October 22, a medical student sustained concussion of the brain and lost two fingers by a sword slash.

Despite the fusillade of missiles at the stage the actors and actresses maintained remarkable composure. The audience, which included cabinet ministers, remained seated. Meanwhile the demonstrators, who kept up a coughing concert, were ejected and arrested by the police in big batches. Two hundred of them were held in custody.

The drama was written by a Jew, Desider Szomory, who deserted from the Hungarian army and lived in exile in Paris for sixteen years. He was pardoned by Emperor Francis Joseph, and in gratitude dedicated the drama to the Emperor, who accepted it.

The National Theatre is the most conservative anti-Semitic institution in Hungary, which even debars Franz Molnar's plays because he is a Jew.

FRIEND OF JEWS LOSES HIS ORDER OF MERIT

Antagonistic feeling against the Jews has reached such a stage here that the Budapest, Hungary, Minister of Education, Count Klebelsberg, who is an active supporter of Premier Bethlen's project of law for removal of some of the academic disabilities of the Jews, this week was declared deprived of the Order of Merit which the students' associations previously had conferred on him. Count Klebelsberg retaliated against the students' defiant speeches by threatening to send police into the university building, its autonomy notwithstanding, to quell any rioting in the future.

The students now demand exclusion of all "foreign" engineers employed in Hungarian factories in favour of those holding Budapest diplomas. This demand has been prompted by the knowledge that many Hungarian Jews who would not be allowed to study in Budapest, study abroad and return to Hungary to take positions on the strength of their foreign diplomas.
